Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Baynesville School is a Georgian Revival building of brick, one story high, with classrooms on either side of an entrance vestibule.

The layout is an improvement of the 1860 school plan which provided a vestibule and two classrooms in line with each other. The vestibule doors are topped by a fanlight, the best architectural feature of the building. The roof is hipped, laid in slate. This building has been obsolete as a school for a long time. There is a shallow lawn in front with some mature pine trees. The rear is used for the parking of school busses which are protected by an industrial chain link fence. The entire neighborhood is composed of low quality commercial buildings, retail outlets with ill kept premises. The Board of Education has considered selling this parcel to BGE.

Prepare both a summary paragraph of significance and a general statement of history and support.

The Baynesville School did not exist in the 1909 official list of Baltimore County Schools but was carried as School No. 8, District No. 9, in the 1914-1915 and 1915-1916 lists of schools and teachers. The first teacher mentioned here was E. May Gray in the tables for 1914. 1

The 1915-1916 annual list classified Baynesville as a "two-teacher rural school" with Julia Cassen and Perla W. Bayne, both residents of Towson, as teachers.

The school was not shown on the Towson area map of G.W. Bromley's 1915 Atlas of Baltimore County, Maryland. It seems logical that the school was built in or about 1914 in time to use for the 1914-1915 season.

Baynesville appeared for the first time as a place name in the 1898 issue of Bromley's atlas. The Baynesville Post Office existed in the early 1880s because the Baltimore County Union of July 19, 1884, reported that Samuel T. Bayne had resigned the postmastership, giving up the annual salary of $3.87½. A person named J. Bayne had been shown as the landowner on the opposite side of Joppa Road in the 1877 atlas by G. M. Hopkins. Baynesville was overrun by urban sprawl shortly after the end of World War II.

This school seems to be missing from the history of the Baltimore County educational system published in the 1940s by Amy L. Crewe.
